

EMBRACING THE VIEWS

COMPLETE INTEGRATION OF POOL,
HOUSE AND LANDSCAPE

This exciting pool, spa and landscape project in Sydney's Pittwater area was part of a major house and landscape renovation that converted a very average suburban house on one acre of land into a unique, self-contained resort.

Peter Glass and Associates, one of Australia's longest-established and most specialised landscape architectural and pool design practices, was highly recommended to the owners of this project, whose main aim was to hugely improve and add value to their tired property.

Peter Glass and Associates specialises in the design of swimming pools and outdoor spaces and, in particular, the seamless integration of internal and external areas. This can be clearly seen in the design of the outdoor lounging area, complete with fire pit and surround seating, as well as in the design of the cabana and outdoor cooking areas adjacent to the pool, which all work together very successfully.

The pool has been designed to be a focal point from all levels of this multi-level property, and looks equally exciting whether looked up at from below; across at from the same level, with the water appearing to spill over the edge into the valley below; or down at from the upper level balconies. The pool fans out to embrace the distant views of Sydney's Pittwater and, as Peter attests, is an absolute joy to swim in.

The extensive landscaping surrounding the house and pool, including the tumbled granite driveway and the expansive lawn and garden areas, serve to further enhance the generous proportions of this property.
